MEMINI '74

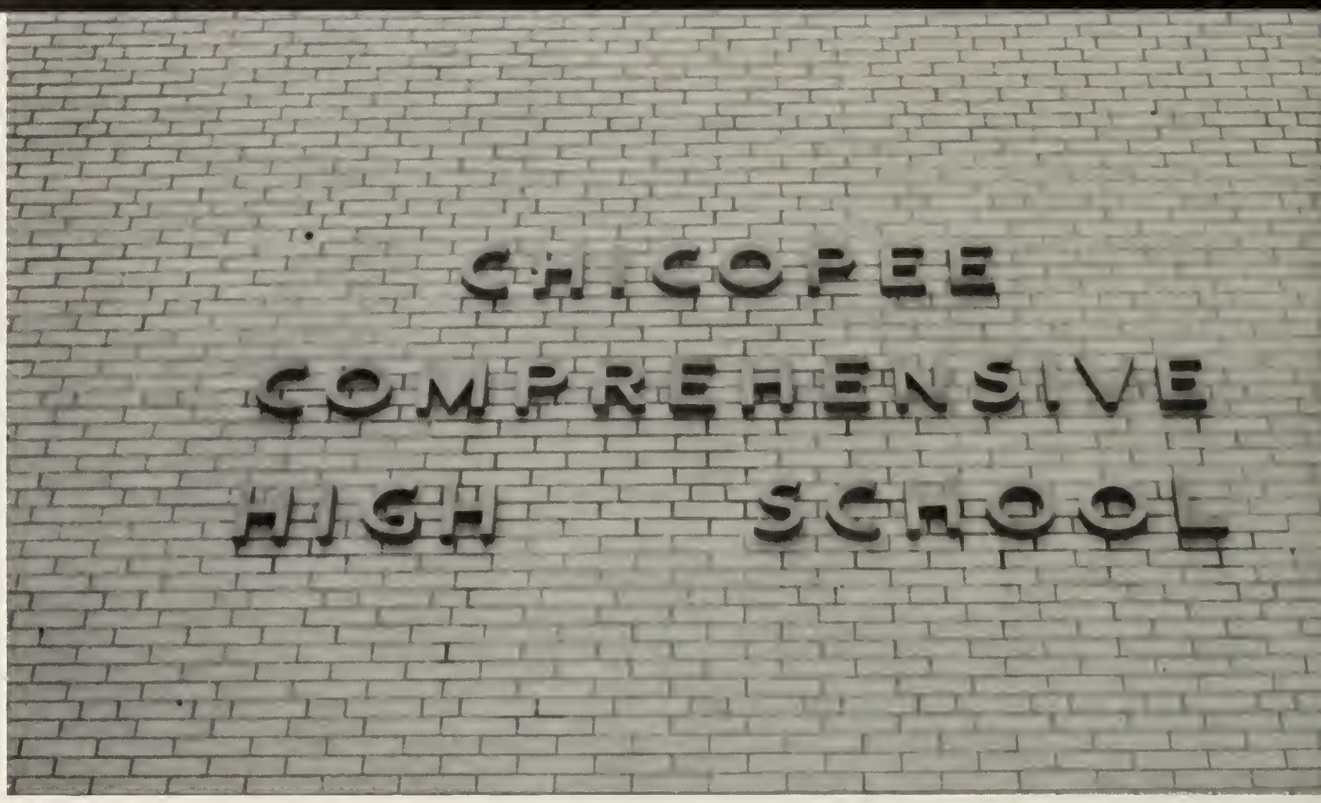
Volume XI



C.H. COPEE
COMPREHENSIVE
HIGH SCHOOL

Half unwilling to surrender the yesterdays of four years that passed within this sanctuary of education, we cling now
to the bitter-sweet memories that tumble in our minds.
As embryos
within our red brick womb, we observed life on videotape and newsprint and spoke in vague and abstract terms of war,
and strife,
and why men die,
hoping to prepare ourselves for graduation —
the ultimate transition from spectator to participant.

That day has come.
We must be reborn
and slapped into the reality of life.
Some of us will seek further education as an opportunity to enrich our minds — or because it is all we have ever known . . .
others will secure a job and become a part of the establishment . . .
and some will follow no set pattern — simply soak life in gradually . . .

but all will go their separate ways, though some may part together, and in the same direction.

We need not fear
that features of friends will fade
to become blurred images.
We have grown to know classmates
by their individuality
so that when later reunited, we might recognize each other once again
though the faces have ceased to be familiar.
Some will be held closest for their ability to spark laughter in a dampened soul and still others simply because they were . . .
but all will be remembered
as a part of the whole — the class of '74.

Here
young minds aged not but grew wiser —
more ready to encounter the future,
which at present is present,
with purposeful confidence.
Much is over now,
yet so much more is just beginning . . .

Twelve years ago, Chicopee Comprehensive High School opened its doors for the first time and with this opening came the normal problems that all new schools must face. It was difficult to persuade new students to relish the idea of attending Comp but it was more difficult to establish a reputation for the school; one that people would recognize and one that students could be proud of.

After years of struggle, Chicopee Comp began to be noticed as a strong high school, due to the efforts of one man in particular.

Even now he continues, often behind the scenes, his efforts to improve the curriculum, to obtain more publicity for deserving students and to achieve recognition for us in areas too numerous to mention. School spirit is magnified by this man as he privately and publicly shares each team's and every individual's triumphs and defeats, and transmits the emotions involved to the entire school population. Because his job involves balancing the conflicting interests of students, staff, parents and school committee, he sometimes must play the role of a strict disciplinarian, a part not suited to his sensitive and just nature.

In short, if one was to devise the formula responsible for Comp's success and strip it of its many variables, one simple fact would remain. Chicopee Comprehensive High School equals Mr. Stanley J. Ziemba. On the basis of this theorem, we, with great love and respect, dedicate MEMINI '74 to our principal.

I can go by myself to the corner past the neighbor's big barking dog
the two cats that sun in the yard and the tree limb that hangs down over my head.
Avoiding the rough gravel mud puddles
the make-believe bush that grabs little children and the forbidden curb that draws them into the street.

Life seems so simple to little children
a secret little world.

But now . .
I wonder why such a delicate effort goes into a spider's web
why a sunrise occurs in quiet splendor if I'll ever understand . .

For now . .
a decision is more than picking out ice-cream flavors or what clothes to wear.
And studying is more than watching ants on the sidewalk or concentrating on rain drops on the window.
The future is more than tomorrow or next week and grown-up is more than not being told that you were too little to do something.

Growing up is . . .
being different understanding life wanting to be more fully yourself better educated, motivated wondering what the future will hold seeing the world before you.

A CLASS HISTORY

"The past is only a beginning." Those words were written on the inside cover of TIME magazine to proclaim the virtues of the Eli Lilly Company. Yet the line seems to embrace more than an advertising agency's commercial intentions. Like the mason who cements each succeeding layer of brick upon the layers he built before, does not every man live each succeeding year along guidelines developed through the experiences of past years? As the strength of the mason's structure depends on how well its foundation supports the walls, the quality of a man's life is greatly affected by the knowledge and character he draws from his adventures as a youth.

Members of the Class of '74 shared a great adventure. Together we journeyed across the sometimes glorious, sometimes dismal, and often confusing expanse of time between the socially defined boundaries of childhood and the adult world. Along the way we helped each other to discover ourselves. To utilize our newly enriched personalities, we must first understand them. It seems inevitable that the attitudes which we developed while at Comp would be molded partially by the social and political climates of our nation. Let us then review some of the events which took place during our high school years, and which consequently played the role of catalyst in the synthesis of our maturity.

Remember the excitement of our first day of high school? Chicopee Comprehensive High — the name alone made us proud that we belonged. As we searched for a con man's elevator, we accepted friendly insults from upperclassmen as part of a cherished tradition.

But the insults exchanged in the newly integrated schools of the South were not friendly. Court rulings upholding the constitutionality of busing as a means of achieving racial balance induced heated, and often violent debate. Indeed, black Americans were not alone in their fight for civil rights. A 19 month long demonstration of the plight of the American Indians ended in June as U.S. marshals removed 15 Indians from Alcatraz Island. Eighty one senators sponsored a constitutional amendment insuring equal rights for women. But prejudice cannot be expected to crumble instantly at the issuing of a court order or the passing of a new law. Perhaps television chiseled away some of the harsher ethnic attitudes by introducing Archie Bunker, a caricature of the American bigot. His hit comedy series, "All in the Family," attacked prejudice by laughing at it.

Archie Bunker slapped the label "pinko fag" on anyone who protested U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, but the many Americans who demonstrated against the war could not be so easily categorized. In February, fuel was added to the already raging fire of dissent when the United States and South Vietnam attacked Laos in order to cut off Communist supply lines. Thousands of demonstrators threatened to close Washington D.C. in a massive civil disobedience protest. Presidential announcements of gradual troop withdrawal did not prevent Massachusetts legislators from passing a law which challenged the President's authority to force soldiers, particularly men from the Bay State, to fight in a war which Congress had not declared. The Supreme Court ruling which deemed this law unconstitutional attracted national attention, as did the case of Army Lieutenant William Calley. Calley was convicted of murdering several South Vietnamese villagers during a mission. Although some Americans agreed with the court marshal jury's verdict, many pictured Calley as a scapegoat sacrificed on the altar of military bureaucracy.

Many other issues crowded the newspapers. The discovery of unusually high levels of mercury in certain seafoods, especially tuna and swordfish, punctuated the ecologists' cry of alarm. President Nixon pledged to wage war against the national drug problem. "Our Father Who Art in Congress" read one sign congratulating Reverend Robert Drinan on his election to the House of Representatives. While Drinan was making news as the first priest to earn a vote in Congress, another priest, Philip Berrigan, was indicted for conspiring to kidnap Presidential Advisor Henry Kissinger. Freedom of the press was upheld when the Supreme Court decreed that the New York Times could continue to publish the controversial Pentagon Papers, a secret study of the Vietnam War's origins. Another court case in the news concerned Charles Manson, who, with three members of his "family", was sentenced to the gas chamber after he was found guilty of planning and executing gruesome mass murders.

Decisions of the judiciary also touched the world of sports when a series of court rulings recognized the conscientious objector status of boxer Muhammad Ali. In spite of Ali's unabashed poetic proclamations to the contrary, reigning champion Joe Frazier thwarted Ali's attempt to recapture the heavyweight title.

While Frazier and Ali prepared to slug it out in the ring, battles of a more bloody nature were being fought across the world. Civil war in East Pakistan resulted in the establishment of the independent nation Bangladesh. Continued terrorism in Northern Ireland prompted the authorization of internment without trial for suspected conspirators. Hopes for an end to the Arab-Israeli conflict were battered when a one month truce was followed by more fighting. Terror in the air became so frequent that, at a conference in December, fifty nations agreed to severely punish hi-jackers.

The concept of international cooperation, as in the disciplining of hi-jackers, was gaining in popularity. In September, five Nobel Peace Prize winners jointly called for an end to the arms race. By January, the Paris Peace Talks had completed 100 sessions. However, what seemed to be the most successful gesture of good will revolved around a table tennis match. The People's Republic of China invited the American table tennis team to visit Communist China. "Ping Pong Diplomacy" opened a whole new era of Chino-American relations, beginning with the relaxation of a twenty year trade embargo. As hope for a thaw in the cold war shone in the hearts of many Americans, our freshman year melted into summer.

The term sophomore is derived from the Greek words sophos, meaning wise, and moros, meaning foolish. Although these roots denote opposite ideas, both describe characteristics of various persons in our class during our second year at Comp. Because overcrowded conditions had necessitated the transfer of freshman to another building, as sophomores we still bore the brunt of jokes about our position as the youngest, and therefore most foolish, students in the main building. Perhaps because of this prolonged ridicule, a definite class pride developed in many sophomores. We considered ourselves to be the most mature, talented, and spirited class in Comp's history. Red and pink carnations symbolizing the Class of '74 were flaunted at the Sword Assembly, and we cheered sophomore gridsters who had participated in the demolition of Chicopee High's squad. We also touted the fact that our class was the first to break with tradition and receive our rings during sophomore year. The ordering of rings was supervised by class officers, whose election in itself had been a new experience for the class. Among other activities initiated were two dances, a sale of school shirts and jackets, and that unforgettable candy drive.

One of the more famous persons deluged with fabulous fruits, turkish taffy, and chocolate cherries was Senator Ted Kennedy. The Congressman's visit to Comp was enthusiastically received by most since he not only expressed his own opinions, but, by encouraging students to vocalize their thoughts, displayed confidence in the maturity and intelligence of our generation.

As Senator Kennedy was greeted by Chicopee with much pomp and ceremony, so President Nixon was welcomed to the People's Republic of China in a grandoise manner suited to the gravity of his visit. The American people marveled as television cameras revealed the secrets of the Forbidden City. Yet many Americans, especially journalists who accompanied the President, questioned the machine-like responses of Red China's people to inquiries from outsiders. The significance of the expulsion of Nationalist China from the U.N. General Assembly in order to seat Peking was also pondered. Many asked why, if this was to be a new era of peace, did the United States disregard international protest and test a five-megaton H-bomb on an Alaskan island?

The mounting tension concerning nuclear weapons was checked somewhat during President Nixon's historic journey to Moscow. Nixon and Soviet Chairman Leonid Brezhnev signed agreements severly limiting the maintenance of missile systems. In the spirit of the occasion, many other American sects devised pacts with their Russian counterparts. Joint plans to ban germ warfare, research cancer and heart disease, investigate environmental problems, and even attempt to communicate with intelligent life on other planets were announced.

Attica

America's foreign affairs, with the possible exception of the Vietnam War, were being handled smoothly. Unfortunately, the same could not be said of our internal problems. The death toll reached 43 as state troopers stormed Attica State Prison, ending a 4 day revolt by inmates. The President's economic stabilization program, involving, among other things, numbered "phases" and a wage-price freeze, was surrounded by controversy. The acquittal, of black activist Angela Davis, who had been charged with murder, conspiracy, and kidnapping, evoked reactions scaling both extremes of the emotion scale. Presidential candidate George Wallace was crippled by a would-be assassin's bullet. Consumers raged as certain products of the Bon Vivant Soup Company were found to contain deadly botulism toxin.

During that year social problems often provided themes for popular movies. First remembered is one that prompted a LIFE reporter to write, "They made us a movie we couldn't refuse." The Godfather was described by another journalist as "the Gone With the Wind of gangster movies . . . artful, intelligent, . . . (a) sensational box office success."

National unrest even disrupted one of America's favorite pastimes when a players' strike delayed the start of the major league baseball season. The strike didn't seem to affect the nation's interest in sports, however. Pro football, after being televised for 177 network hours, won TIME magazine's "most popular game show" award. Girl watching caught fire as a sport when hot pants ignited the fashion scene. Opportunity for active participation in athletics wheeled into the lives of many Americans as the bicycle boom burst upon the nation.

Perhaps the popularity of bicycles, unlike that of the short lived Smiley buttons, was more than just a fad. A need to escape the grind of the Great American Dream Machine, a desire to return to a simpler, more reflexive way of life was expressed by many Americans. For some, this included a reversion to less structured religion. Exemplifying the growth of the Jesus movement was the enormous success of the rock opera Jesus Christ, Superstar. Music in general seemed to reflect a desire to slow down and cherish each moment. Songs like Don McLean's American Pie vied with the more brazen sounds of rock for position at the top of record charts. Contemplation also invaded the realm of fiction as Jonathan Livingston Seagull, who preached that each individual embodied the capacity for perfection, achieved a limited sort of hero status. Perhaps you were one of the many who, with these concepts in mind, embarked on an exploration of self during the summer of '72.

Today's Army wants to join you.

Inherent in the title "junior" was the realization that the high school experience , for us, was already half over. No longer would we wonder at the awesome physical intellectual powers of upperclassmen. Our heroes had graduated, and we had been assigned their place in the ranks of the student body. But that promotion did not instantly inspire in us those qualities, such as confidence and intuition, which had so often been attributed to upperclassmen. Instead, many of us found that our world became more and more confusing as we grew older.

This feeling of perplexity was punctuated early in our junior year by the 1972 Summer Olympics. The Games, once considered to be, as one journalist described them, "a cross between Camelot and the United Nations," began with the exclusion of Rhodesians and ended with the slaughter of Israelis. Within this political frame was pictured a whole gallery of foul ups. Adding the number of medals lost because of peculiar officiating and questionable interpretation of rules to the victories tarnished by athletes' displays of anger or indifference caused many Americans to question the value of the Olympics.

From this mural of mistakes, however, emerged champions awarded hero status by the world's population. Among them were Olga Korbut, the 4' 11" Russian gymnast who captured the crowd's heart when she broke into tears after a bad performance, and American swimmer, Mark Spitz, who emerged from the pool in Munich "dripping with more gold medals — seven — than anyone had ever won in a single Olympics".

September also saw Bobby Fisher become the first American ever to win the world chess championship. Fisher, egocentric and demanding, shunned publicity and ignored fans.

On the other hand, political candidates, especially Senator George McGovern, the dark horse who had outrun such prominent hopefuls as Hubert Humphrey and Ed Muskie in the race for the Democratic nomination, actively sought exposure. Campaign fever swept the country, and even Archie Bunker was running for president. Many Comp students, especially upperclassmen encouraged by the lowering of the voting age to 18, joined the ranks of campaign workers.

The results of this election are history. Only Massachusetts of the 50 states cast its electoral votes for McGovern, and the career of Richard M. Dixon, the comedian who cashed in on his physical resemblance to the President, was insured for "four more years".

One of the hottest issues of the 1972 presidential election was the scope of America's role in Southeast Asia. The magnitude of this controversy was brought home to Chicopee residents as a hoard of demonstraters, most from area colleges, converged at the gates of Westover AFB to protest B-52 bombing raids over Vietnam. While McGovern advocated immediate withdrawal of all American personnel and financial support, the bombing continued as Nixon spoke of a "secret plan" for "peace with honor". His plan, to negotiate a settlement, was revealed by Henry Kissinger, who, in October, announced, "Peace is at hand" and hinted that the President's Christmas present to the United States would be a signed and sealed truce.

Three months — months that saw accusations of betrayal exchanged by American and Vietnamese negotiators — passed before the cease-fire agreement was signed. No dancing in the streets followed the President's announcement of peace. As the Boston Globe commented, the war ended "not with a cheer but a sigh".

Perhaps contributing to the somber tone of America's reaction was the knowledge that Lyndon B. Johnson, the president held responsible by many for America's involvement in Vietnam, died of a heart attack just days before the settlement was reached.

If Americans, hawks and doves included, were to vote on which of the settlement's sections was most important, the winning chapter most probably would be the one which insured the safe return of all prisoners of war and which outlined an effort by both sides to determine the fates of U.S. soldiers missing in action. Amerca's concern for the lives of these men had been displayed by a multitude of buttons, bumper stickers and especially POW/MIA bracelets. If the warm and sincere welcome home these men received could not erase the years of agony they had endured, at least it could help ease the cultural shock they experienced upon arriving in the States.

One of the adjustments returning POWs had to make was to an increase of nearly 30% since 1969 in consumer prices. By the spring of our junior year, the skyrocketing cost of food, especially meat, had become as one reporter wrote, "literally a gut issue" for most Americans. Even the President's institution of ceilings on meat prices did not stop consumers from organizing a national week-long boycott.

Housewives weren't the only people using boycott as a means of protest. The Chicopee Education Association, the union to which most Comp teachers belonged, decreed that none of its members would supervise extra-curricular activities until progress was made in contract negotiations with the school committee. The most dramatic, although far from the most mature, reaction to that decision was manifested by a group of freshmen who staged two walkouts from the Annex. This action did not earn the freshmen much respect from students at the main building. Most upperclassmen, to quote the Chronicle's Letters to the Editor column, were "disgusted" because the walkout's participants "marred CCHS's once fine reputation."

Many students also complained about the extensive coverage the walkout, involving less than ten percent of the student body, received from the local news media, claiming that reporters blew the incident out of proportion and therefore invited public criticism of the entire Comp population. President Nixon was making similar charges against the national press. The media, in turn, called growing government pressure on journalism, "a plot against free speech."

Nixon's career-long battle with the press reached a climax over the breaking into and bugging of the Democratic National Committee Headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex. How deeply the White House was involved will be a subject of debate for years to come. The press played a vital role in the stimulation of that debate. Countless pages of newspaper and magazine copy coupled with live television coverage on all three major networks succeeded in making the term Watergate synonymous with scandal and corruption in high office.

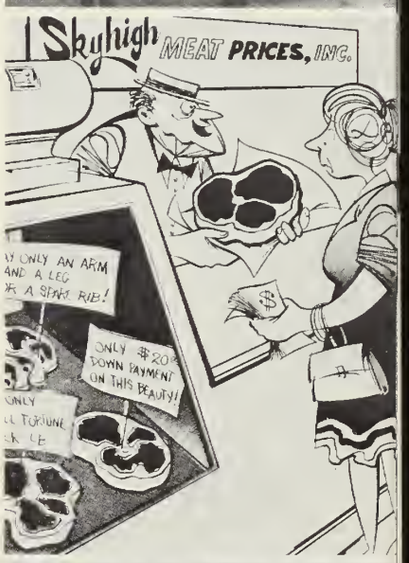
As juniors, our class also played a part, if indirect, in making Chicopee aware of Washington upheavals. In November, we had sold nearly $10,000 worth of magazine subscriptions to area residents, and in many of these magazines were published the latest activities of such Watergate characters as Martha "Mouth" Mitchell and Senate investigating committee members Thomas Baker, who made so many housewives swoon, and Uncle Sam Ervin.

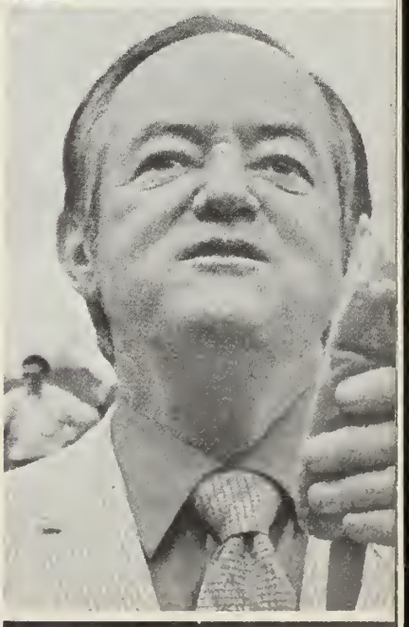
Our promotional booklets listed entertainment magazines, as well. A top seller was T.V. Guide. If we were to examine copies of this magazine published during our junior year, we might find a discussion of how "The Waltons", a series displaying the love and home-spun humor of a family brought closer by the depression, compared with "An American Family", a PBS documentary on the crumbling relationships within a "typical" family on the verge of divorce. Another issue might review the popular eastern-western "Kung Fu" or the two new comedy hits "Maude" and "Sanford and Son". A third might comment on the rising ratings of the late Friday night "In Concert" series which featured acts ranging from Alice Cooper to Seals and Croft.

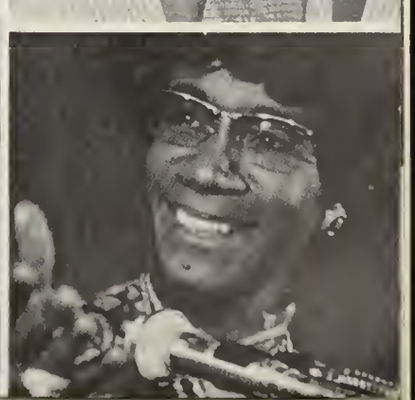
A look at the fashion pages of TV Guide would reveal that nostalgia was the "in" thing while we were upperclassmen. Fads included haircuts from the 20's, baggy britches and bow ties from the 30's, red nail polish and lipstick from the 40's, and rock 'n roll music from the 50's.

Although many bands touring the country capitalized on the growing rock 'n roll revival movement, few were more entertaining than a group of greased up juniors who performed in the Comp Frolics. Their act was the finale in the class of '74 sponsored production which brought together a great number of student talents.

Soon after the Frolics came the junior prom, and with the prom came the realization that our third year of high school had reached its conclusion. The months had passed quickly, replacing our sophomore fears with a sense of independence. We were excited about becoming the number one class, the seniors of Comp High. But at the same time we were saddened by the need to bid good luck and God bless to so many old friends. Our loss was compounded by the closing of Westover Air Force Base, because many juniors would be transferred during the summer. June 18th witnessed many blue good-byes.







1973 SENIOR YEAR 1974

The guttural command "Give me an S!" evoked a wide range of responses from seniors crowded into the gym's bleachers. Some members of the Class of '74 squeezed every possible unit of volume from their bodies as they spelled out their title. Perhaps they hoped to produce a sound that would echo forever. Other seniors, unable to define the reason behind such enthusiasm and yet wanting to participate, clapped and cheered sporadically. Still other members of our class remained silent, knowing that the cliche "alone in a crowd" could describe a very real experience.

Drawing all these seniors together, however, was the knowledge that rallies, and the familiar high school lifestyle in general, would soon be reduced to the status of mere memory. With this awareness came a demand for decision. Often torn between the security of the past and the challenge of the future, seniors wrestled with questions concerning careers, college, marriage, military service, and all other aspects of that nebulous entity labeled "the outside world." What degree of success, as defined by civilization, did we hope to achieve? How much trust could be placed in social institutions?

Our final year of high school was not one which inspired confidence in the status quo. The winner of the All American Soap Box Derby was disqualified for cheating. Fighting continued in Vietnam even after the first anniversary of the signing of the peace agreement. While IBM, longtime symbol of corporate power, was being found guilty of monopoly, McDonald's, who in 1973 replaced the army as the nation's largest dispenser of food, was involved in an advertising suit concerning its Quarter Pounder. Marilyn Chamber, better known as the mom on the Ivory Snow box, was starring in hard core skin flicks.

Public faith in one of America's most revered government institutions — the presidency — dwindled as the press examined Richard Nixon's personal finances, methods of campaign funding, and role in the Watergate break-in. Calls for impeachment were amplified by the so-called Saturday Night Massacre, in which Attorney General Elliot Richardson and his top aide, William Ruckelshaus, lost their jobs rather than obey the president's order to fire Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox. Investigation, under the direction of new Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, continues at the time of this writing.

Further damaging the credibility of the executive branch was the resignation of Vice-President Spiro Agnew to avoid indictment on criminal charges of bribery and extortion by a Maryland grand jury. The parting of Agnew led to the unprecedented appointment of a new Vice-President, Gerald Ford. The selection of Ford, known in Congress where he had served for twenty-five years as a good natured Everyman, was a move to improve the White House image and not a political springboard for Ford, who said, "I will not run (for president) in '76."

Also adding much credence to the Nixon administration was "Super Secretary of State" Henry Kissinger. Kissinger, the German immigrant who had, as one journalist wrote, "created the intellectual framework for . . . the new detente with China . . . relations with the Soviet Union . . . (and) the truce in Vietnam," labored for lasting peace in the Middle East during our senior year. His whirlwind missions initiated a cease-fire after the October war and made definite progress in terms of a permanent settlement, especially between Israel and Egypt.

Americans wanted peace in the Middle East for two reasons. First was the possibility of a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union, as exemplified by the placing of all American troops on top priority alert for a few tense days during the October war. Second was the Arab discovery of a new weapon — oil politics. Arabs refused to export oil to any country which sided with Israel, especially the United States. This move aggravated the already looming American fuel shortage.

Talk of the so-called energy crisis engulfed the nation. While fuel companies soon declared that even lifting the Arab embargo would not end the energy crunch, many consumers asked if the shortage wasn't manufactured by large oil companies to cut competition and inflate prices. Environmentalists shuddered as a return to coal-powered industry was discussed and plans for the Alaskan pipeline were finalized.

A shortage of fuel wasn't the only one plaguing Americans. Although the August meat shortage had ended with the lifting of price controls, scarcity of grains, caused in part by natural disasters and the now famous Russian wheat deal, in which the Soviets, with the help of a US government loan, bought one fourth of the American crop, kept food prices soaring. Increased demand and limited supply of commodities ranging from paper to plastics, promoted and will, economists estimate, continue to promote inflation during and beyond our senior year.

Britian, too, was experiencing difficulties. One Englishman described the result as "the worst crisis since World War II." Strikes and slowdowns by powerful unions, especially coal miners and railroad engineers, coupled with an already faltering economy, produced a three day work week for most Britains.

The English forgot their economic woes for one day, at least, during November as Princess Anne married her "commoner cavalryman" Mark Phillips. As Englishmen lined the streets leading to Westminster Abbey, a television audience of 500 million around the world basked in sentimentalism.

Could an American parallel to this escapism be drawn? Perhaps elements of such an analogy existed as people, through the media, shared the glory of O.J. Simpson's new football rushing record and encouraged slugger Hank Aaron to better Babe Ruth's home run total. The courage of the Kennedys during the amputation of Ted Jr's leg and the comic salesmanship of Mason Reese (the borgasmord kid) touched, if for different reasons, the hearts of many Americans. Evidence of public yearning, as one journalist hypothesized, "for a more ordered world — a world where pure good triumphs over pure evil, . . . when the System works" could be found in television programming, where one third of prime time scheduling was devoted to crime (police / detective / lawyer / etc.) drama. Movies, too, ranging from the nostalgic "American Graffittee" to "The Exorcist", which dealt with the devil, seemed to satisfy a need to "get away from it all." The comet Kohoutek also captured the fancy of many. Or possibly the best comparison would be the excitement generated over a tennis contest billed as "The Battle of the Sexes." Women's champion Billie Jean King "licked" the Sugar Daddy, alias professional hustler Bobby Riggs, in three straight sets.

Such escapes were temporary, however, and Americans in general accepted changes in their lifestyles necessitated by shortages. The most explicit example of this would be their reaction to the energy crisis. Although dramatic incidents, such as the violence in areas where independent truckers had blocked highways to protest rising gas prices and lowered speed limits, or the case of a woman in Springfield who died while waiting for an ambulance which could not break through a line of customers at a gas station, invited much publicity, most people voluntarily lowered their thermostats, observed "gasless Sundays," and curtailed their driving distances and speeds. Fuel consumption was cut significantly by this cooperation.

Perhaps in this cooperation is found the lesson of our senior year, and of our entire high school experience. Our society is made not of government offices or corporate bureacracies, but of people, and each individual's actions are significant factors in determining the direction pursued by society. Let us mark 1974 on the calendar of our lives as the time that we, as individuals, began to exercise the responsibilities and the privileges inherent in the fellowship of man. For us, the past IS only a beginning.

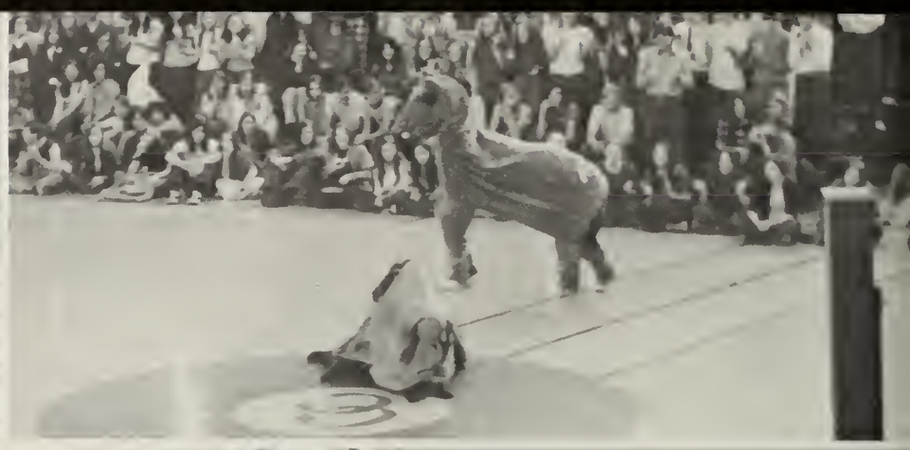
COMP-CHICOPEE RALLY

As the spider crumbled under the hoof of the Comp Colt, tension in the gym mounted. Emotions were further aroused as one of the exchange speakers from Chicopee High declared that Comp would be defeated. The football squad, with the very vocal support of the crowd, decided to prove her wrong.



POWDER PUFF

The words "Powder Puff" do not aptly describe the high powered action and excitement of the flag football game between Comp's junior and senior girls which took place on the afternoon before the Comp-Chicopee game. In a hard-fought contest, the Class of '74 defeated the Class of '75 by a score of 22-14.

Diane Mitchell came across with two touchdowns for the victors and Kris Bartiromo's long run down the field added six points to the senior score. Pam Keene and Judy Liggon delivered the extra points.

Scoring touchdowns for the juniors were Kathy Houle and Chris Furnelli, while Mary Czajkowski crossed the goal line with the extra points conversion.

Both teams were inspired by their fine cheerleading squads. All the "girls" looked absolutely stunning in their fashionable minis and workboots. Their red lipstick and rather revealing jerseys caught the bewildered eye of many spectators at the afternoon event.

The cheerleaders and Powder Puff teams contributed greatly to our memories of the traditions surrounding the Comp-Chicopee rivalry.

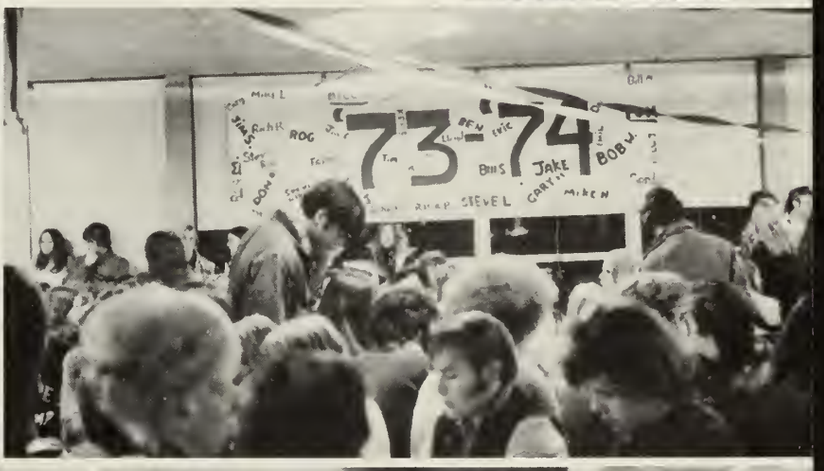
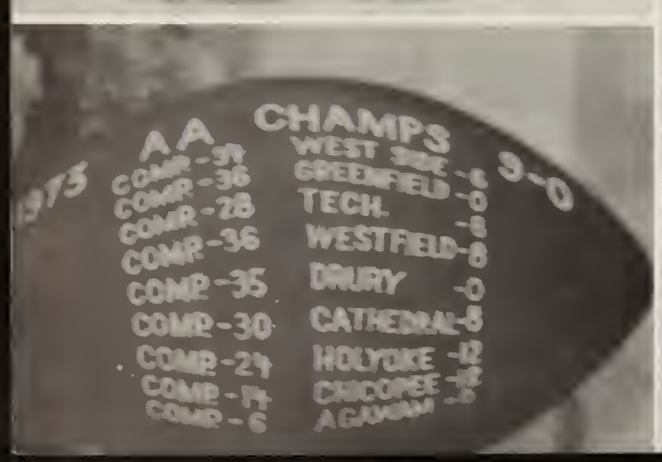
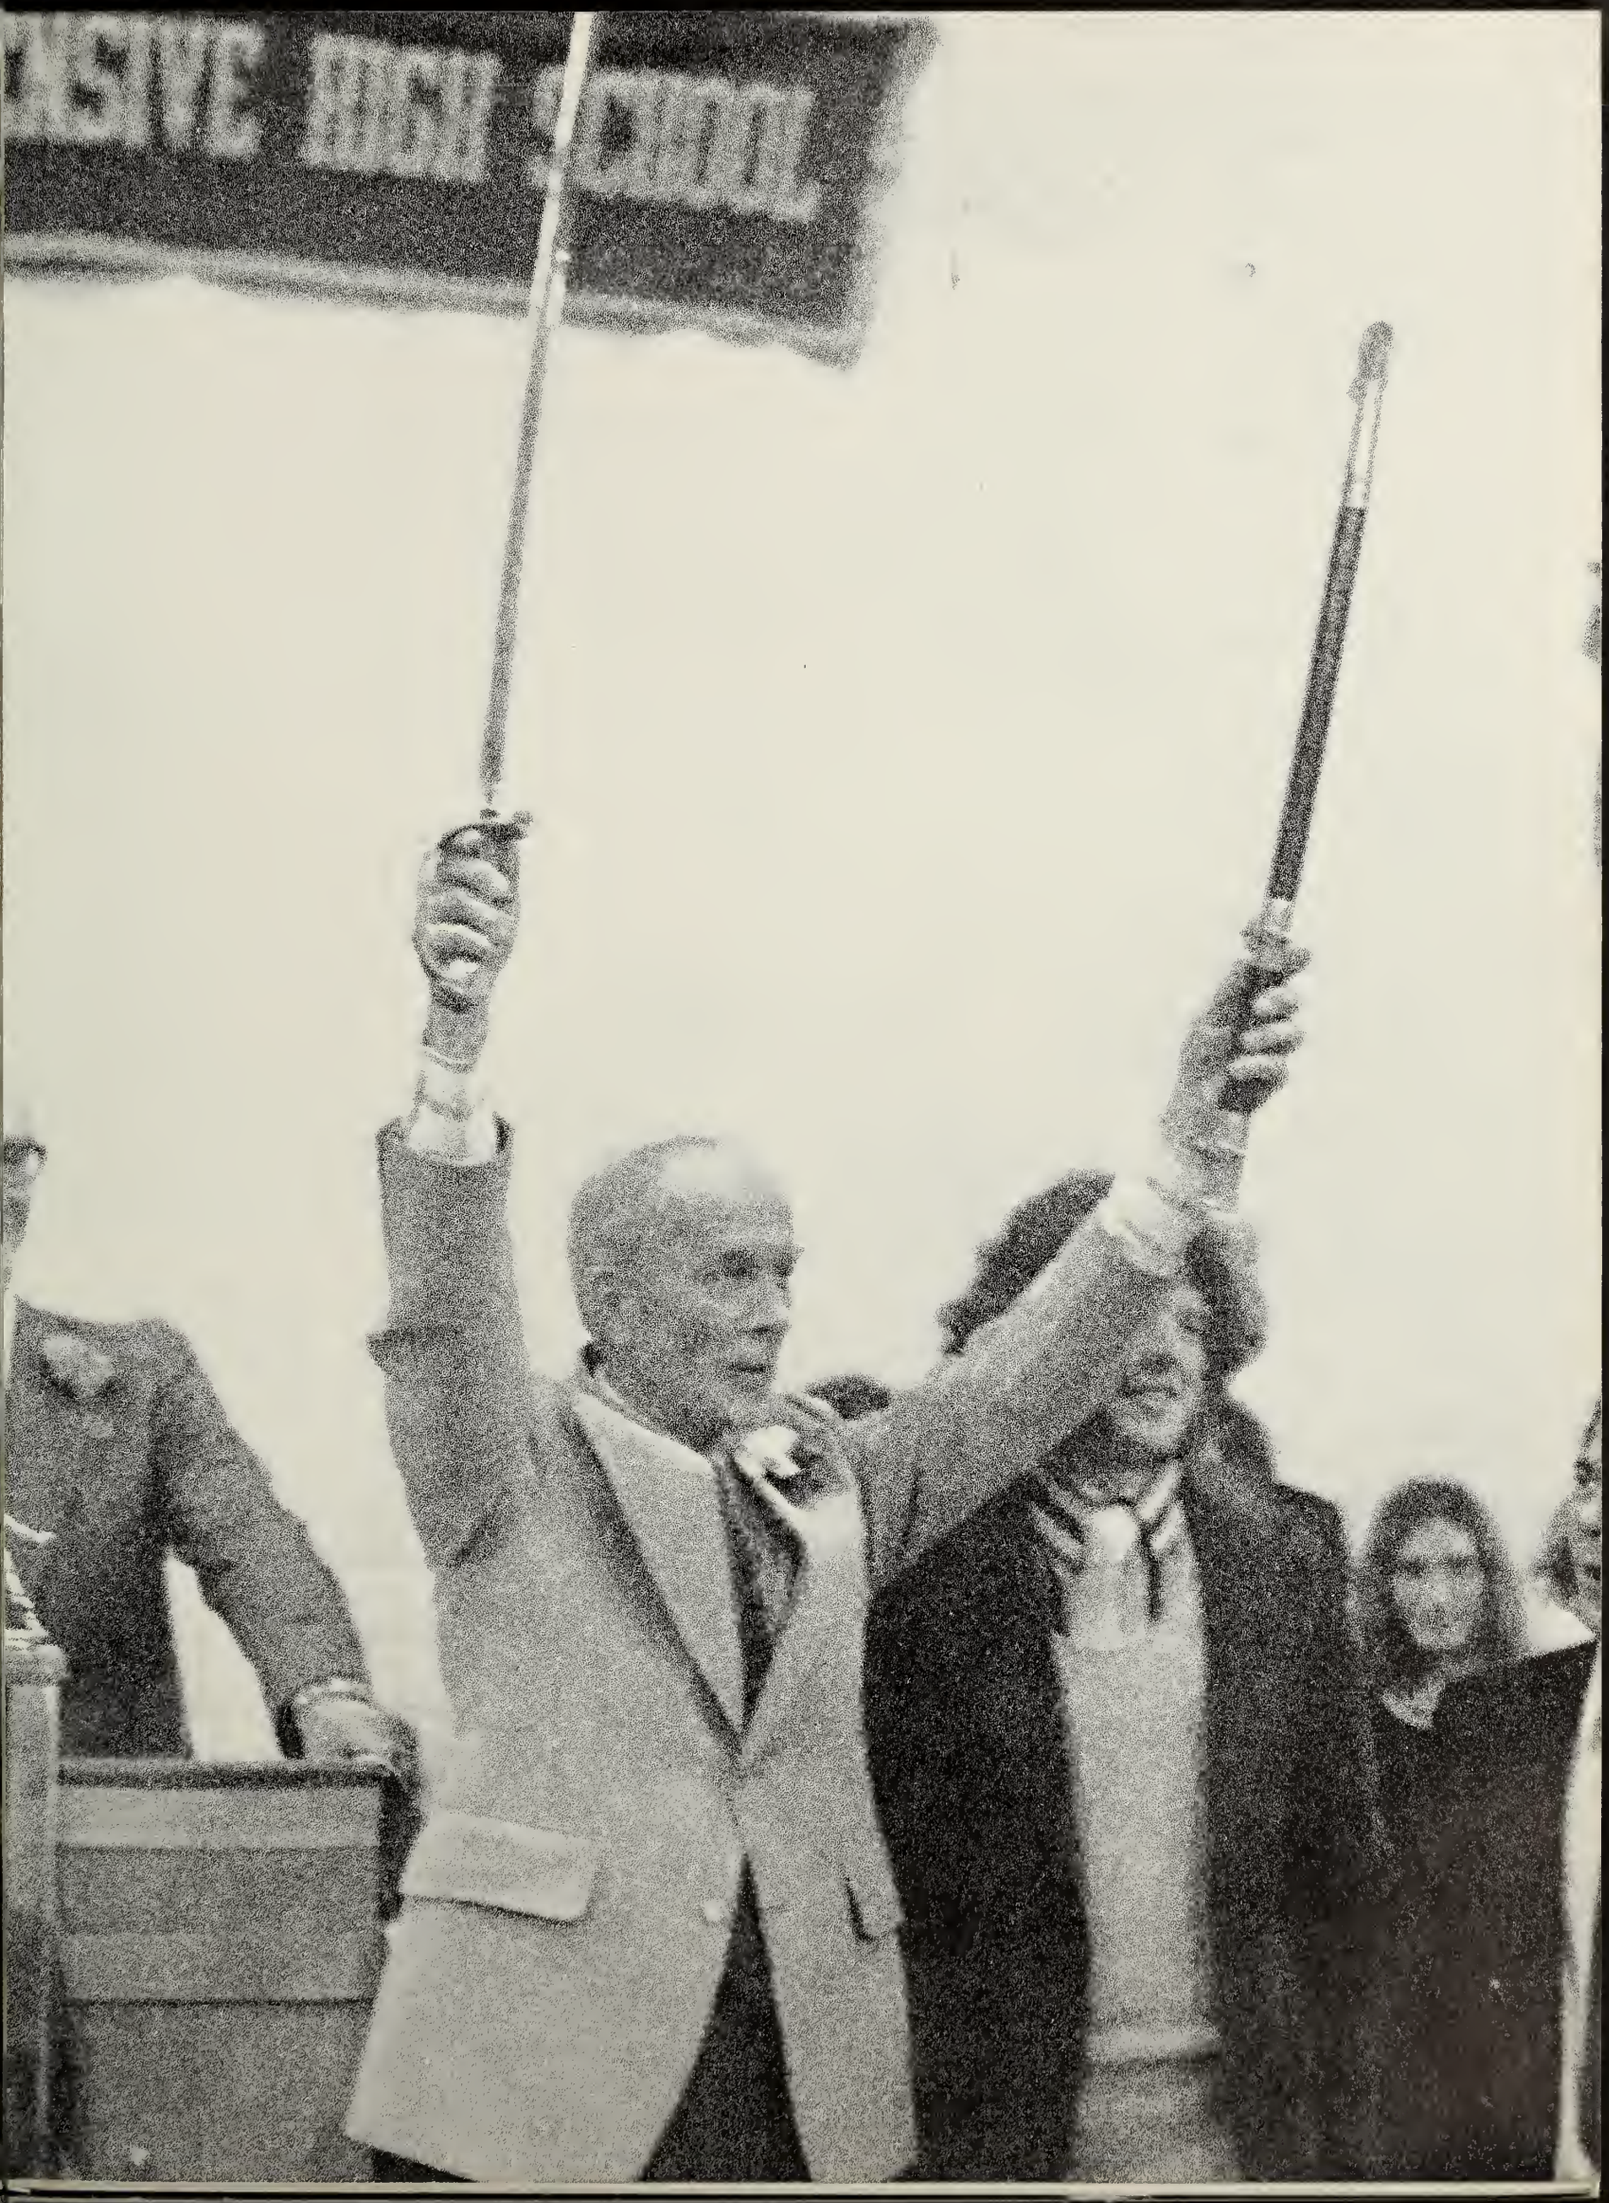
A senior-sponsored spaghetti dinner, under the supervision of Louise Mercier, proved to be a huge success as more than six hundred hungry fans jammed the school cafeteria at the conclusion of the Comp-Chicopee game. Included on the menu was a birthday cake for Coach Llodra, even though he had received two better presents earlier in the day; a victory over Chicopee High and assurance of the Western Mass Division I Title.

Awards for performance in the Comp-Chicopee game highlighted the event. Fullback Steve Rivera was named the outstanding senior while Bill Saparito and Bob Watson received awards for best offensive and defensive player respectively.



COMP REGAINS THE SWORD





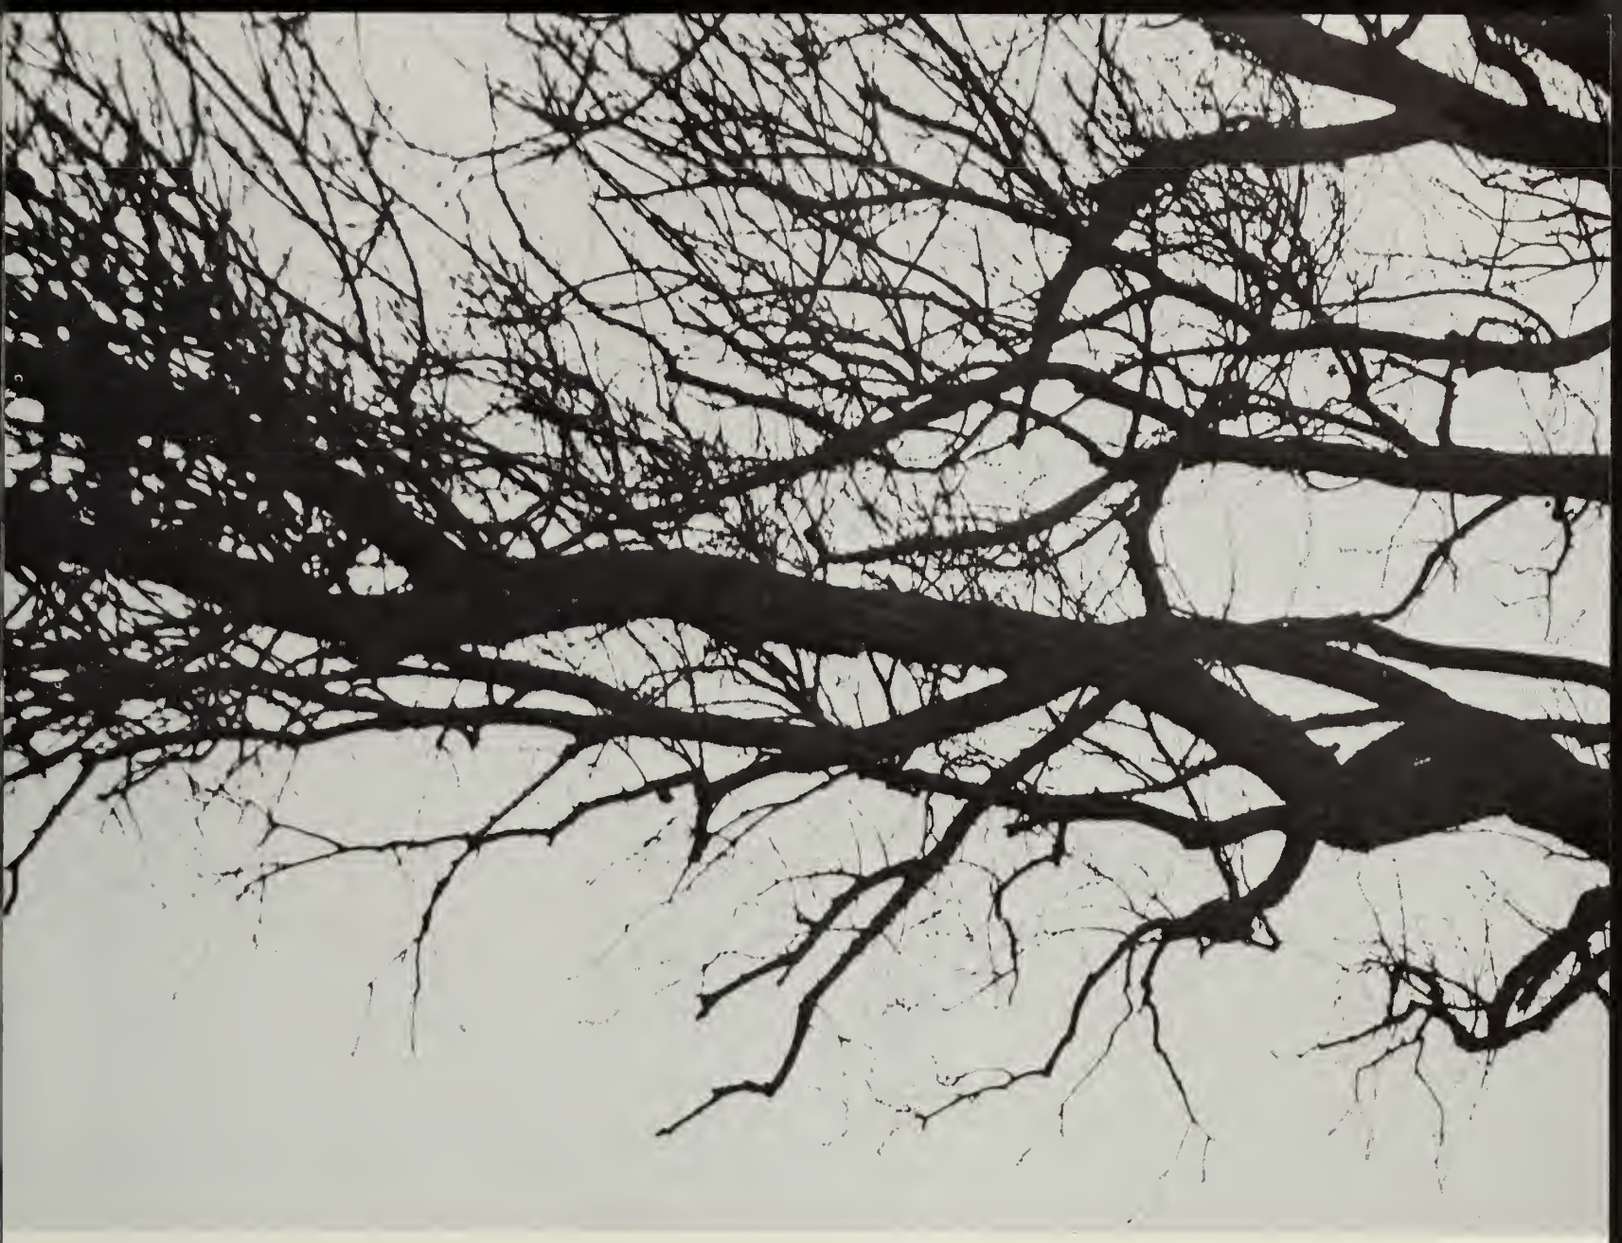
With the arrival of Christmas came the annual holiday activities at school. Once again the Canned Food Drive made it possible for many Chicopee residents to enjoy plentiful Christmas dinners.

Our Christmas Concert took place on the last day of school before holiday vacation and the final results of the Canned Food Drive were announced. In the race to see who would collect the most cans, the Class of '77 outdid all upperclassmen by coming out on top.

Also, the Student Council planned a successful Christmas party for the faculty's children. Among the fun and games was an especially exciting round of hot potato. The highlight of the party was a visit from Santa who had many surprises in his sack for all the children.

A WINTER WORLD

8 o'clock — Corinthian Room — Treadway Inn



I would not exchange the sorrows of my heart for the joys of the multitude. And I would not have the tears that sadness makes to flow from my every part turn into laughter. I would that my life remain a tear and a smile.

A tear to purify my heart and give me understanding of life's secrets and hidden things. A smile to draw me nigh to the sons of my kind.

A tear to unite me with those of broken heart; a smile to be a sign of my joy in existence.

I would rather that I died in yearning and longing than that I lived weary and despairing.

I want the hunger for love and beauty to be in the depths of my spirit, for I have seen those who are satisfied the most wretched of people. I have heard the sigh of those in yearning and longing, and it is sweeter than the sweetest melody.

With evening's coming the flower folds her petals and sleeps, embracing her longing. At morning's approach she opens her lips to meet the sun's kiss.

The life of a flower is longing and fulfillment. A tear and a smile.

The waters of the sea become vapor and rise and come together and are a cloud.

And the cloud floats above the hills and valleys until it meets the gentle breeze, then falls weeping to the fields and joins with the brooks and rivers to return to the sea, its home.

The life of clouds is a parting and a meeting. A tear and a smile.

And so does the spirit become separated from the greater spirit to move in the world of matter and pass as a cloud over the mountain of sorrow and the plains of joy to meet the breeze of death and return whence it came.

To the ocean of Love and Beauty.

CHICOPEE, Mass. (pop. 65,553; alt. 150 ft.), is an industrial city on the Connecticut River, five miles north of Springfield. The falls on the Chicopee River led to industrial development in the early 1800's. Factories in the city make tires and tubes, electronic products, athletic equipment, and cheesecloth. Westover Air Force Base is located nearby. Chicopee was settled in 1641 and became a city in 1890. With the neighboring cities of Springfield and Holyoke, Chicopee forms a metropolitan area that has a population of approximately 505,000. Chicopee has a mayor-council form of government.

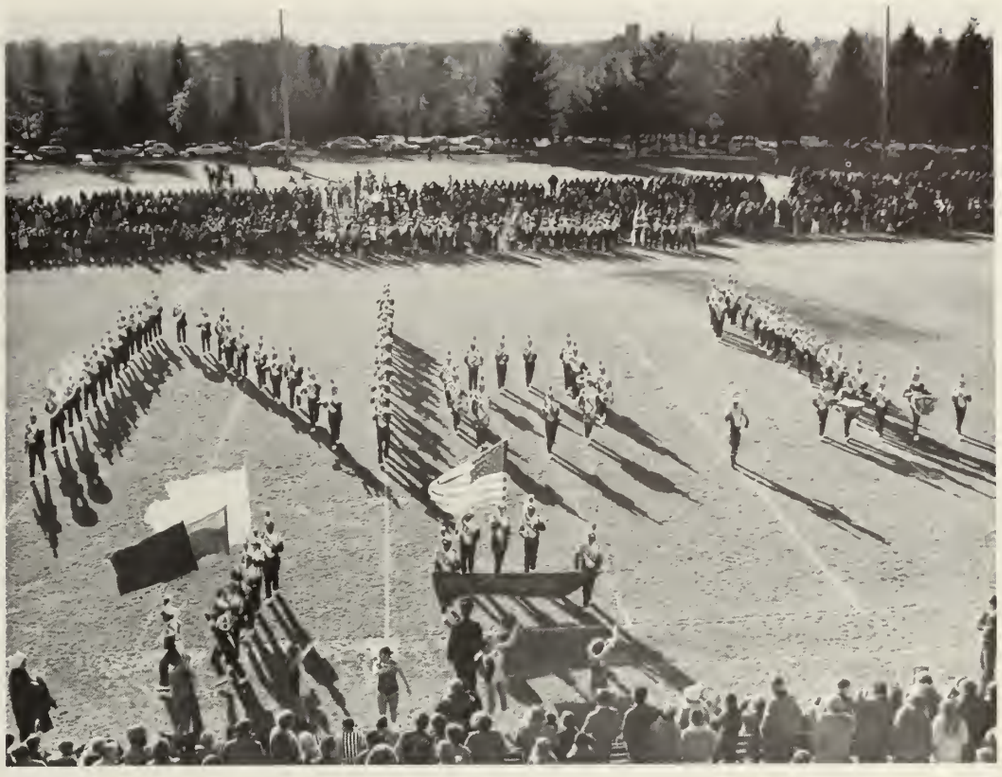
For success on the athletic field, spirit and pride are essential. In any high school a good band can provide music, but at Comp our band not only provides good music but has created some of the spirit and drive which has become a part of this school. Comp is not only No. 1 in sports, but also has a No. 1 band. In the past four years the "Marching Colts" have marched away with top honors in many parade competitions. With victories in the Springfield Columbus Day Parade, the Holyoke St. Patrick's Day Parade and the Fall Foliage Parade in North Adams, Mass., (where the band has won the title of "Best High School Band" for the last three consecutive years), the Comp Band has proven it is No. 1. The true test will come in May of 1974 when the band will compete against bands from all across the state for the official title of "No. 1 Band in the State of Massachusetts for 1974". The winner will participate in the U.S. Bicentennial Celebrations in 1976. The success of the Comp Band is just another example to prove that this was "The" year for Comprehensive High School. Spread the word, Comp is No. 1.



What is DE? Distributive Education identifies a program of instruction which teaches marketing, merchandising and management.

What is DECA? DECA identifies the Program of Youth Activity relating to DE — Distributive Education Clubs of America — and is designed to develop future leaders for marketing and distribution. DECA is the only national student organization operating within the nation's schools to attract young people to careers in marketing, merchandising, and management.

DECA and the Student — DE students have common objectives and interests in that each is studying for a specific career objective. DECA activities have a tremendous psychological effect upon the attitudes of students, and many students have no other opportunity to participate in social activities of the school or to develop responsibilities of citizenship. DECA members learn to serve as leaders and followers and they have the opportunity for state and national recognition that they would not have otherwise.

DECA and the Community — DECA members have made numerous studies and surveys to aid the economic development of their own community. Individual and group marketing projects continue to encourage this type of contribution. Many businesses favor hiring DE students because of their interest in training and their related school study of that particular business. Many leaders in business and government have praised DECA for its civic-related activities.

FACULTY

I have been a teacher for ten years. During that time I have given assignments, among others, to a murderer, an evangelist, a pugilist, a thief, and an imbecile. The murderer was a quiet little boy who sat in the front row and regarded me with pale blue eyes; the evangelist, easily the most popular boy in the school, had the lead in the junior play; the pugilist lounged by the window and let loose at intervals a raucous laugh that startled even the geraniums; the thief was a gayhearted Lothario with a song on his lips; and the imbecile was a soft-eyed little animal seeking the shadows.

The murderer awaits death in the state penitentiary; the evangelist has lain a year now in the village churchyard; the pugilist lost an eye in a brawl in Hong Kong; the thief, by standing on tiptoe, can see the window of my room from the county jail; and the once gentle-eyed little moron beats his head against a padded wall in the state asylum.

All these pupils once sat in my room, sat and looked at me gravely across worn desks. I must have been a great help to these pupils — I taught them the rhyming scheme of the Elizabethan sonnet and how to diagram a complex sentence.

WILLIAM MIELKE
Coordinator of Secondary Education

To the Class of 1974:

It is with great pleasure that I extend to each and every member of the class of 1974 my sincere congratulations upon your graduation from Comprehensive High School. You first entered this school a short four years ago and with hard work and a desire to succeed have satisfied all requirements for a high school diploma.

I hope your future will be filled with good fortune and great joy. Use your education to help you live a good life and to become a worthwhile citizen of your community. Sir William Osler once said: "Live not in the past nor in the future, but let each day's work absorb all your interest, energy, and enthusiasm. The best preparation for tomorrow is to do today's work superbly well."

In conclusion may I say that you are without question a great class. You have done an outstanding job and have established a truly wonderful record; one which will not be surpassed for a long time.

Please accept my thanks for all that you have done to make Comprehensive a truly great school.

Our past football season began with nervous sophomores, wondering how bad they were going to get beat up; questioning juniors, anxious to see if they would start; and cocky seniors, confident that they were on top and were "Number 1". But the differences between us soon melted into a mass of sweat, blood and exhaustion — total exhaustion. Those hot August days brought the team closer together than any rally or pep talk ever could. We knew after we had endured the summer we were a team — a contending team.

Our season was a mixture of people and personalities. Everyone did their job in their own way for the benefit of the team. One individual in particular would play only three minutes in every varsity game yet he contributed immeasurably to our efforts. After being hit time after time, he would still volunteer for assignments. Our team was something special to him and he was something special to us. Perhaps the reason for our success was the realization that we were not the most talented players in the league. We won on hustle and pride. Although the agility of some was not the greatest, they had hearts that no one could beat. They exemplified the drive and determination that placed our team above all others.

This year's cross country squad once again recorded a winning season with a 7-2-1 record. Seniors Bob Celatka, co-captains Jim Ash and Jim Dillon provided the necessary back up strength for the team's number one man Dan Dillon. With Coach Alex Vyce at the helm, the team practiced hard, running ten to fifteen miles a day in hot, cold and sometimes rainy weather. The harriers achieved a first for the school when they tied West Side on the opposition's home course. The team's only losses were to the league powerhouses, Holyoke and Holyoke Catholic. At the Western Mass cross country meet held in Amherst, Dan Dillon placed first, out distancing his nearest opponent by 100 yards. Other high finishers were Jim Ash, Jim Dillon, Bob Celatka, Marty Sheil, Durrell Wheatley, and John Champagne. Dan Dillon and Jim Ash both qualified for the State meet held in Boston. Dan proved to be the second fastest runner in the state of Massachusetts, beaten only by Stetson Arnold of Southwick.

This year, our soccer team posted a misleading 9-4-2 record for the season. Although we did not win the Valley League Title, we were a determining factor in the League's outcome. We took three out of four possible points from West Springfield, who finished the season in first place. We also split with Chicopee High, who took the State Schoolboy Soccer Title. Senior goalie, Dan Franczek, and senior co-captain, Steve Bourque, received berths on the All-Western Mass. Soccer Teams. These accomplishments highlighted our competitive season.

Our success was truly a team effort. The defense allowed only 1.2 points per game and our offense boasted well balanced scoring on the line, averaging 2.1 goals per game.

When speaking of the team's accomplishments, we must include those that cannot be expressed in statistics and numbers. Coach Bill Davis helped us to grow physically as well as mentally, and prepared us for the fierce competition we will face later in life. Although there is no system for measuring his success, we all feel that his leadership has helped us in many ways. We sincerely thank him for his efforts.

The varsity basketball team displayed fine team effort and fantastic basketball skill in posting an outstanding 22-2 record the 1973-74 basketball season. Led by Coach Alex Vyce, the cagers swept through the Valley League with an unblemished 14-0 record. Impressive victories were recorded over Chicopee, Northampton, Holyoke Catholic and Holyoke.

The team was led by 6'7" center Pat Holmes, who averaged more than 20 points and 15 rebounds per game. The squad was also blessed with such sharpshooters as Donny Mitchell and Captain Rick Jasinski. Both contributed greatly in the team's outstanding performances throughout the campaign. Guards Tom Miskiv and Gary Masse set up plays and helped out in the scoring column as well.

If the team ever needed back-up strength, there was always a bench full of anxious players waiting for the opportunity to help. Outstanding reserves were Dan Franczek, Bob Celatka and Alex Mitchell, who came from the bench and added the extra incentive to the winning team. Other highly regarded reserves who did not see much action but were instrumental in the team's success were Jim Dillon, Mike Labrie, Don Cloutier and Tim Nelson.

The Colts got by Agawam and Classical in the quarter-final and semi-final rounds of the Western Mass. Championships and went on to face the much talked about Red Raiders of Commerce High. The Colts proved this talk was a bunch of myths and proceeded to take a 66-64 decision from the stronger and much taller Commerce team.

The cagers went into the semi-finals in the state championships against St. John's of Danvers but lost a tough, hard-fought game 65-59.

The school is proud of the basketball team and wishes to thank all involved for a job well done.

The Comp varsity hockey team closed out its 1973-74 campaign with an 18-4 overall record. The team finished second in the Fay-Wright Division and went on to the quarter-finals of the Western Mass. Hockey Championships. The team took a 2-0 decision from the Spartains of East Longmeadow. The Colts then faced a strong Pittsfield team but fell to a score of 6-0.

Outstanding performances were recorded by Gene Douillard who tended the nets spectacularly throughout the Colts' rugged schedule. Glenn Herdendorf played great defense and also sparked the team offensively in some contests. Real Aube, the freshman sensation, led the team in scoring along with Ken Demers.

Dave Moreau, Leon Lemay, Rick Hottin, Mike Pare, Andy Hevey, Dave Butova, Garth Desmarais, and Tom Renaud also added to the team's great success.

We sincerely wish to thank Larry Grenier of Grenier-Ducharnie Studios for the countless hours of help he has given us within the past year.

When he wasn't preparing our proof sheets and five by seven glossies, Larry was either at school taking club and team pictures, down on the hockey rink and basketball court snapping sports photos, or in the studio, shrinking, cropping, enlarging, special effecting, etc., picture after picture for us.

For his constant concern and willingness to help in any way, we express our deepest appreciation.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Donna Rojowski, Sharon Gaudrault, Chris Bozek and the entire advertising staff who enabled us to obtain more money in ads than ever before.

Edward Ciosek, Debbie Donneville, Kris Bartiromo and Danny Tatsch who gave up much free time to take pictures of us.

Special thanks goes to Jim Barrows for his enthusiasm and concern over our photographic requirements. Also to John Vartanian for his invaluable assistance and many offerings from his private photo collection.

Gail Chagnon and the subscription committee who sold more yearbooks this year than in past years.

Mary Fontaine for her outstanding work on everything, especially the Class History, which required her to do extensive research and aslo required her to write the equivalent of four term papers.

Lynn Provost for her efficient handling of the senior section and writing of activities for 450 students.

Steve Rivera, Bob Celatka, Dan Franczek, and Doug Loveridge who contribued many long hours to the design of their own sports section.

Dino Brunetti who ran all over the city in order to obtain official sports scores.

David McKissick and Ken Laramee who supplyed the needed copy for various sports sections.

Gisele Martineua who composed the opening section of the book.

Lisa Moreau and Craig Lincoln for the design of the table of contents.

Mr. Roger Fluery who dropped everything in times of crisis to supply us with badly needed photographs.

Mr. Raymond Boulais, yearbook advisor, who forcefully suggested that we meet our deadlines and showed unyielding confidence in us when we didn't.

Grenier-Ducharme Studios for senior portraits, candids, and most of all for their unending cooperation and understanding.

Mr. Don Lendry, American Yearbook Representative.

Spend a weekend around a hot set of wheels.

The really hot wheels come with wings. Like our Air Guard F-100 Super Sabre jets. Slashing through the sky with a turbojet engine... and an afterburner providing more than sixteen thousand pounds of thrust. You can help move our wheels one weekend a month. Learn a skill. Get extra pay. Do something different. Help the country. See how you can move our hot wheels in the Air Guard.

The Senior Class Play — Bell, Book and Candle

We May Never Pass This Way Again — June 8, 1974

Life, so they say, is but a game
And they let it slip away
Love, like the autumn sun, should be dying
But it's only just begun
Like the twilight in the road up ahead
They don't see just where we're goin'
And all the secrets in the universe
Whisper in our ears
And all the years will come and go
And take us up, always up.

Dreams, so they say, are for the fools
And they let them drift away
Peace, like the silent dove, should be flyin
But it's only just begun
Like Columbus in the olden days
We must gather all our courage
Sail our ships out on the open sea
Cast away our fears
And all the years will come and go
And take us up, always up.

So I wanna laugh while the laughin' is easy
I wanna cry if it makes it worthwhile
I may never pass this way again
That's why I want it with you
'Cause you make me feel like I'm more than a friend
Like I'm the journey and you're the journey's end
I may never pass this way again
That's why I want it with you
We may never pass this way again.
